NEW - TEAM SCIENCE COMMUNITY TOOLKIT

Explore and use tools and resources co-developed by community partners to increase equity, transparency, and participation in Community Engaged Research.

COALESCE is a free online educational resource developed by Northwestern University researchers and designed to foster cross-disciplinary, collaborative research in health sciences.

Join the ACTS Team Science Professionals SIG's August session to learn about the new Team Science Community Toolkit developed to support community-academic partnerships. The toolkit is organized by phases:

- Making the decision to partner
- Co-developing the grant and budget
- Preparing for the research
- Conducting the Research
- After the research has finished

Ideal for researchers to share with community partners, the toolkit is written in plain language and is highly interactive.

Community members Shaneece Taylor and Héctor Torres (Colibrí Counseling – Chicago), along with Bonnie Spring, Madison Hartstein (Northwestern University), Whitney Sweeney, Patrick Kelly, and Kat Phelps (University of Wisconsin-Madison) will provide an overview and demonstrate elements of this valuable resource that blends Team Science with the principles and practices of community engagement.

For Zoom Link Contact: Patrick Kelly from the University of Wisconsin Madison OR Madison Hartstein from Northwestern.

Dr. Tiffany Anderson is the first African American superintendent of Topeka Public Schools. She has been a public school educator for 28 years. In addition, Dr. Anderson advises Kansas officials on postsecondary and equity policies. She also serves on multiple boards and has become a voice for the nation's educators.*

Bridging Voices, Breaking Barriers: Maternal & Infant Health

Join us for an assembly to address maternal and infant health inequity. With the goal of inspiring collective action, informing policy changes and improving access to care, the event will feature:

- Keynote address from Dr. Tiffany Anderson, superintendent of Topeka Public Schools and an expert in the fields of education and health equity
- Speakers from a variety of specialties
- Roundtable discussions from the health professional's perspective
- A community health leadership panel

The Health Outcomes Assembly is a multidisciplinary convening focused on unpacking and mitigating health care disparities affecting marginalized communities. The vision for the Assembly is to increase awareness of bias and its impact on patient treatment and health outcomes; promote multidisciplinary review of disparities in care; establish solutions toward mitigating disparities further exacerbated within our medical community.

Atypical Family
Backgrounds –
Interview
Recruitment
Announcement

Researchers at the Institute for Policy & Social Research at the University of Kansas are studying the healthcare needs of adults who were adopted, raised in foster care or donor-conceived and now live in rural communities. As part of that work, the study team is interviewing people with these backgrounds to understand their healthcare needs. Interviews will last about 30 to 60 minutes. This information will help inform training for healthcare providers.

Individuals who are interested in participating in interviews and are over the age of 18, live in a rural community in Kansas, and were adopted, raised in foster care or donor-conceived can contact Carolyn Caine (caine@ku.edu or 785-864-9102) to volunteer to participate. All information shared in interviews will be confidential, and the study team will report only broad themes from the interviews. Participants will receive a $50 gift card in thanks for their contributions to the research.

Johnson County Mental Health, and specifically the Johnson County Suicide Prevention Coalition have a goal to enhance community support and response to mental health crises and build mental health awareness.

The training, education, and resources offered can assist you and your team in effectively responding to individuals in distress and knowing where to refer them.

The resources and trainings are free, easily accessible and can be delivered in person or virtually :

- Print and other materials: brochures, resources, posters, lock boxes, etc.
- Educational training on how to use print materials and talk to individuals at risk for suicide
- QPR training (Question, Persuade, Refer)
- 988 (suicide and crisis lifeline) education. Understanding the difference between 911 and 988.
- Understanding co-responder and crisis response team programs
- Most materials are available in English and Spanish. If there is large demand for anything in Spanish, it can easily be made.
