Community-Academic Partnership Education Workshop Series Survey

The Frontiers Clinical and Translational Science Institute at the University of Kansas recognizes the importance of robust academic-community partnerships to advance science and improve community health. To support the development and sustainability of these partnerships, the Frontiers Community Engagement Core is launching a new education series about academic-community engagement and research. We want to hear from you what is important for researchers to know about community engagement and for community leaders to know about research.

Please complete this short survey by May 31, 2024, to help us create this new educational series.

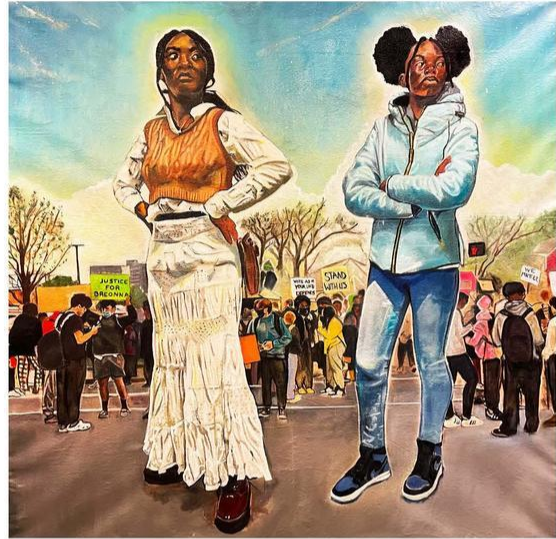

SPENCER MUSEUM OF ART

Emmett Till & Mamie Till-Mobley: Let the World See February 9–May 19, 2024

This traveling exhibition shares the story of Emmett Till and the bravery of his mother, Mamie Till-Mobley, whose activism fueled the Civil Rights Movement. Developed in collaboration with the Emmett Till and Mamie Till-Mobley Institute, The Emmett Till Interpretive Center, the Till Family, and The Children’s Museum of Indianapolis, Let the World See challenges visitors to make a ripple for justice in their own communities.

One History, Two Versions February 9–June 16, 2024

This companion exhibition to Let the World See features work by contemporary Black artists addressing themes including Black life, Black love, media representation, and activism. The artworks speak to the Till family story as well as recent events, showing that racial violence and the need for social justice continues today. It includes work from the Spencer’s collection alongside loans from The Children’s Museum of Indianapolis and Bill and Christy Gautreaux.

ADMISSION TO THE SPENCER MUSEUM’S EXHIBITIONS AND EVENTS IS FREE FOR EVERYONE.

Community Prevention
Coordinator via email.

Johnson County Mental Health, and specifically the Johnson County Suicide Prevention Coalition have a goal to enhance community support and response to mental health crises and build mental health awareness.

The training, education, and resources offered can assist you and your team in effectively responding to individuals in distress and knowing where to refer them.

The resources and trainings are free, easily accessible and can be delivered in person or virtually :

- Print and other materials: brochures, resources, posters, lock boxes, etc.
- Educational training on how to use print materials and talk to individuals at risk for suicide
- QPR training (Question, Persuade, Refer)
- 988 (suicide and crisis lifeline) education. Understanding the difference between 911 and 988.
- Understanding co-responder and crisis response team programs
- Most materials are available in English and Spanish. If there is large demand for anything in Spanish, it can easily be made.

The Center for African American Health invites you to celebrate freedom.
